No. 168.—

Fort St. George, July 9, 1935 (G.O. No. 383, Finance)

The Government have re-examined the terms on which motor lorries owned by Government are hired for the use of Government officers and the fees to be levied for the detention of the lorries in such cases. The following revised orders are issued in supersession of G.O. No. 93, Finance, dated 5th February 1931, and G.O. No. 630, Finance, dated 4th October 1931.

2. Cases of the use of Government motor lorries by officers or by Government departments may be classified as follows:—

(1) where the lorry is used solely for the conveyance of Government servants and Government material, records, etc., and its detention is necessary in order that such Government servants and material may be conveyed when necessity arises;

(2) where it is used solely for the conveyance of an officer's personal servants and effects and is detained in order that it may be available for the same purpose when necessity arises;

(3) where it is used partly for Government purposes and partly for the conveyance of an officer's personal servants and effects.

3. (a) Paragraph 2 (1).—When a lorry is used solely for the carriage of Government servants and material of any non-commercial Provincial department, no charge should be made either for mileage or for detention; but when a lorry is used for the carriage of material for a Provincial commercial department or a Central Government department (e.g., carriage of treasure), a rate of 8 annas per mile should be charged for the total mileage run by the lorry and a detention fee of Rs. 2 per diem should be levied for its detention, provided that, while so detained, it is not used and no mileage is paid for its use.

(b) Paragraph 2 (2).—A rate of 8 annas per mile will be charged for the hire of a lorry if it is used solely for the carriage of an officer's personal servants and effects. The same rate will be charged for the return journey of the lorry: in other words, an officer hiring a Government lorry will be required to pay the full mileage rate for the total mileage run by the lorry on or in connection with the officer's business. For example, if an officer hires a lorry for the carriage of his personal servants and effects for a journey of 10 miles and returns it empty, he will pay the hire charges for 20 miles at 8 annas a mile or Rs. 10 in all. If, however, another officer hires the lorry for the return journey, the latter will pay for the lorry at 8 annas per mile for this journey, thereby relieving the former officer of the necessity of paying hire for the return journey of the lorry.

A fee of Rs. 2 per diem will be levied for the detention of a lorry by the officer, provided it is not used while so detained. This fee should be paid in full by the officer hiring the lorry for the days during which the lorry is detained and for which no mileage is paid for its use.

(c) Paragraph 2 (3).—When a lorry is used partly for Government purposes such as the carriage of office furniture, records or stores, and partly for the carriage of the officer's personal servants and effects, the charge for mileage and for detention will be the same as in paragraph 3 (b) above, but a proportionate rebate not exceeding one-half of the full mileage rate and of the detention charges leviable under the sub-paragraph above will be allowed. The claim for rebate should be supported in each case by a certificate from the officer stating the number of Government servants and the approximate amount of Government material carried on the trip.

4. Payment for hiring the lorry should be made ordinarily by deduction from travelling allowance bills. The recoveries effected from bills should be treated as the receipts of the department owning the lorry, and the department which owns the lorry will watch the realisation of credit as in the case of other departmental revenue.

5. The above rules will apply to all cases in which a Government lorry is used by an officer on tour, and no exception can be admitted on the ground that the purchase of a Government lorry may have been or may be declared necessary for the use of a particular officer. When such an order is passed, its effect will merely be to give the officer referred to a first call on the vehicle in preference to others, and to vest in him the authority to allot the lorry at his discretion to other officers who may require it for use on tours, when it is not required for his own touring, subject of course, to the payment of the prescribed hire and detention charges.

RULES.

PART I.

Rules for building sites.

1. No piece of land shall be used as a building site if the Council considers that the site is insanitary or that it is dangerous to construct a building thereon.
2. If the building is to abut on a street, the site shall be of such a shape that the face of the building shall be made parallel to the line of the street, or be nearly parallel in such line as the Council may permit.
3. If the site is within thirty feet of a tank, well, stream or fresh water channel, its approval for building shall be subject to the condition that the person building on it shall carry out such measures as the chairman may direct, for the purpose of preventing any risk of the drainage from such building passing into such tank, well, river or fresh water channel.
4. No site shall be used for the construction of a public building, a dwelling house or a hut if it is the opinion of the Council it is damp or badly drained or incapable of being well drained.
5. No site shall be used for the construction of a building intended for public worship if in the opinion of the Collector of the district, the construction of the building thereon will wound the religious feelings of any class of persons.
Provided that an appeal shall lie from the Collector's opinion to the Local Government who may issue such orders as they may deem fit.
6. If the building is to be constructed on a site surrounded wholly or partly out of the side of a hill, the applicant shall produce a certificate from such officer as the Local Government may appoint in this behalf, that the measures proposed to be taken in connection with the site and the buildings are sufficient to prevent risk of injury to person or property.

PART II.

Building rules.

(1) Buildings generally.

7. In every building, whether new or reconstructed from the lowest floor level:—

(a) the plinth and the lowest floor shall, in the case of huts, shacks, cattle-sheds and cow-houses, be not less than one foot and, in the case of other buildings, be not less than one foot six inches, and

(b) the courtyards shall be not less than one foot

Explanation.—For the purposes of this rule, "nearest street" is the case of huts includes the nearest passage.

8. In the case of a street not being a conservancy lane, no building, other than a boundary wall not exceeding five feet in height above the level of the centre of the street, shall be built above the lowest floor level of the main building, within four feet of the street alignment or in the space between the building line prescribed under section 166 and the street alignment.

9. In the case of a conservancy lane, no building, other than a service or a boundary wall not exceeding eight feet in height above the level of the centre of the lane, shall be built within ten feet of the edge of the lane.

(a) containing separate sets of chambers or offices or rooms constructed or intended or adapted to be tenanted by different persons; and

(b) the cubic content of which exceeds fifty thousand cubic feet the floor of every lobby, corridor, passage and landing and every flight of stairs in any staircase and all the supports of every such floor and flight of stairs shall be constructed of stone or other fire-resisting material and shall be of adequate strength, and the principal staircases and landings of such building shall be enclosed with walls, not less than nine inches in thickness, constructed of good, hard, sound, well-burnt bricks, stone, or other hard and incombustible materials, properly bonded and solidly put together.

Fencing of yards and open spaces.

48. Every yard or open space in a dwelling house or other building used or intended to be used for purposes of human habitation shall, where it is necessary for the prevention or remedy of insanitary conditions, be properly paved—

(a) with a hard, durable, and impervious pavement of flagging or paving bricks, evenly and closely laid upon a sufficient bed of good mortar or other suitable material, and properly jointed, or

(b) with good cement, or lime mortar or such mortar concrete rendered with three-fourths inch cement plaster, or

49. Every closed drain shall be constructed of good sound pipes formed of glazed stoneware, heavy cast-iron or other suitable material.

50. Every such drain shall be of adequate size and, if constructed or adapted to be used for conveying sewage, shall have an internal diameter of not less than 4 inches and shall be laid with a proper fall and with water-tight, socketed, or other suitable joints.

51. Every such drain shall be so constructed as not to pass under a building except where no other mode of construction is practicable.

52. Where any such drain has to pass under a building, it shall be laid in a direct line for the whole distance under such building and, if constructed of other than iron pipes, shall be completely encased in and covered with good and solid concrete at least 6 inches thick all round; and between the top of the drain at its highest point and the surface of the ground under such building, there shall be a distance of not less than the laid diameter of the drain.

53. Adequate means of access shall be provided in connection with such drain at each end of the portion thereof which is under a building.

54. Every inlet to such drain, not being an air inlet, shall be properly trapped.

55. Every drain which may directly communicate with any sewer or other means of drainage into which such drain may lawfully empty shall be provided, within the curtilage of the building, with a suitable trap at a point as distant as may be practicable from such building and as near as may be practicable to the point at which such drain may be connected with such sewer or other means of drainage; and such trap shall be provided with proper means of access for purposes of clearing.

be provided at or near the end of the drain and before it joins the public sewer into which the sewage may lawfully discharge.

61. Every pipe or shaft which may be used as a connection with the drain shall be of a sectional area not less than that of the drain with which such pipe or shaft may communicate, and not less in any case than the sectional area of a pipe or shaft of the diameter of four inches.

62. No drain shall be constructed in such a manner as to allow any inlet to such drain (except such inlet as may be necessary from the apparatus of any water-closet or any slop-sink constructed or adapted to be used for receiving within the building any solid or liquid filth) to be made within the building.

63. The soil-pipe from every water-closet shall be at least four inches in diameter.

64. Every soil-pipe and the waste-pipe from every slop-sink shall be fixed outside the building, and be continued upwards without diminution of its diameter and (except where unavoidable) without any bend or angle being formed in such soil-pipe or waste-pipe, to such a height and in such a position as to afford, by reason of the apex and of such soil-pipe or waste-pipe, an outlet for foul air, at a safe distance from windows, chimneys or other openings.

65. Every soil-pipe shall be so constructed that there shall not be any trap between such soil-pipe and the drain, or any trap (other than such as may necessarily form part of the apparatus of any water-closet) in any part of such soil-pipe.

66. The waste-pipe from every bath sink (not being a slop-sink constructed or adapted to be used for receiving any solid or liquid filth), or lavatory, and every pipe for carrying foul waste-water shall be properly trapped and shall be taken through an external wall of the building, and shall discharge in the open air over a channel leading to a trapped gully grating.

67. The overflow-pipe from any cistern and from every sink under any bath or water-closet shall be taken through an external wall of the building and shall discharge in the open air.

68. Every water-closet or earth-closet shall be constructed in such a position that at least one of its sides shall be an external wall.

69. Every water-closet or earth-closet shall have in one of its walls a window opening directly into the external air and of dimensions not less than two feet by one foot exclusive of the frame.

70. Every water-closet shall be provided with a separate system of flushing-hat of adequate capacity, which shall be so constructed, fixed and placed as to be a direct supply of water for use in such water-closet without any direct connection between any service pipe upon the premises and any part of the apparatus of the water-closet, other than the system of flushing-hat.

71. Every water-closet shall be provided with a suitable apparatus for the efficient application of water to any pan, basin, or other receptacle with which such apparatus may be connected and used, and for the efficient flushing and cleansing of such pan, basin, or other receptacle, and for the prompt and efficient removal therefrom of any solid or liquid filth which may from time to time be deposited therein.

72. Every water-closet shall be provided with a pan, basin, or other suitable receptacle of non-absorbent material, and of such shape, capacity, and mode of construction as to secure and contain a sufficient quantity of water, and to allow all filth which may from time to time be deposited in such pan, basin, or receptacle to fall free of the sides thereof, and directly into the water received and contained in such pan, basin, or receptacle.

73. No container or other similar thing shall be constructed or fixed under the pan, basin or receptacle.

74. No trap of the kind known as a 'D' trap shall be constructed or fixed in or in connection with a water-closet.

75. Every privy shall be constructed in such a manner and in such a position as

(a) to afford ready means of access thereto, for the purpose of cleansing such privy and of removing filth therefrom, and

(b) to admit of all filth being conveniently removed from such privy, and from the premises to which such privy may belong, without being carried through any dwelling-house or public building, or any building in which any person may be, or may be intended to be, employed in any manufacture, trade, or business.

76. Every privy shall be provided with a sufficient opening for ventilation, as near to the top as practicable, and communicating directly with the external air. The floor of the privy shall be flagged or paved with hard tiles or other non-absorbent material and shall be so constructed that it shall be in every part thereof at least six inches above the level of the ground adjoining it and so that each floor shall have a fall or inclination of half an inch in the foot towards the door of the privy.

(b) Application for permission to construct or re-construct buildings generally.

77. Before granting permission for the construction or re-construction of a building the chairman shall take into consideration the proximity of electric supply lines, if any, to the building and shall withhold permission for such construction or re-construction if such arrangements are made by the applicant to meet the requirements of the rules made under the Indian Electricity Act, 1910.

(*) Application for approval of sites for, and for permission to construct or re-construct, buildings other than huts.

78. Every application for the approval of a site for a building and for permission to construct or re-construct a building shall be submitted in the form specified in Schedule II to these rules, with such variations in circumstances may require. Such form shall be supplied by the chairman free of charge.

79. The site plan accompanying each application shall be in duplicate, shall be drawn to a scale of not less than one-fiftieth of an inch to a foot and shall be signed by the applicant.

80. Every site-plan shall show

(a) the survey number and the dimensions and boundaries of the site,

(b) the position of the site in relation to neighbouring streets,

(c) the name of the street in which the building is proposed to be erected,

(d) the exact position of (i) all buildings which the applicant intends to erect on the site, and (ii) all adjacent streets, buildings and premises within a distance of forty feet of the boundaries of the site,

(e) the means of access from the street to the buildings which the applicant intends to erect on the site,

(f) the position and approximate height of all other buildings within a distance of forty feet of the boundaries of the site,

(g) the position, and dimensions of proposed latrines, urinals, drains, cess-pits, ditches, catchpits, cow houses, wells and other appendages of the building,

(h) the free passage or way in front of the building,

(i) the space to be left about the building to secure a free circulation of air, shade, also of light, and access for scavenging purposes,
